Tiny Batteries Pose Sizeable Risks: The number of serious injuries or deaths as a result of button batteries has increased ninefold in the last decade. Button batteries can be extremely dangerous. If swallowed or placed in the nose or ears, button batteries can cause serious injury or death, according to the National Capital Poison Center. More than 3,500 people of all ages swallow button batteries every year in the United States. Most pass through the body and are eliminated, but sometimes they get hung up in the esophagus. An electrical current can form in the body, and hydroxide, an alkaline chemical, can cause tissue burns that can be fatal. For more information on these hazards, please visit www.nsc.org/learn/safety-knowledge/Pages/Child-Safety-Button-Batteries.aspx.
