Army seeks review, comments on Makua archaeological survey

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Hawaii — The U.S. Army is seeking public comments through August 13, 2014, on an archaeological subsurface survey conducted at Makua Military Reservation.

The community can view or download the survey report online at www.garrison.hawaii.army.mil/makua. Click “2014 Archaeological Subsurface Survey” on the left side of the page.

The survey report is also available at the Waianae, Kapolei, Wahiawa and Waialua public libraries, under the title “Archaeological Subsurface Survey in Areas B through F at Mākua Military Reservation, Mākua Ahupua‘a Wai‘anae District, O‘ahu Island, Hawai‘i.” In consideration of the environment, hard copies of the plan are available upon request.

Comments may be submitted via email to usaghi.pao.comrel@us.army.mil or via mail to: U.S. Army Garrison–Hawaii, Environmental Division, Attn: Makua Archaeological Subsurface Survey – Public Comments, 948 Santos Dumont Ave., Schofield Barracks, HI 96857.

Comments must be emailed to usaghi.pao.comrel@us.army.mil or postmarked no later than August 13. Individuals who have questions about submitting comments can call (808) 656-3089.

The Army will also hold a public meeting on the Leeward Coast during the 60-day public comment period for those individuals who would like to comment in person. The date, time and location will be announced as soon as available.

The Army completed the archaeological subsurface survey in compliance with an order by the Federal District Court issued June 20, 2012.
